

Omar Andrade

Omar Andrade leads group individuals who conceptualize and commercialize thought leadership in the form of events, rich media, research and custom publishing. His projects have typically leaned to areas related to business transformation, both strategic and tactical. Other areas of focus include Risk Management, Change Management, Leadership, Financial Services and the Finance Function.

Over the past decade he has created events, sponsored research vehicles, multimedia programs and custom publishing projects for every major consultancy and technology organization. Previous to his work at The Conference Board he has held positions at The Economist and CFO Publishing and several international positions within the chemical industry. He holds a BE in chemical engineering from The Stevens Institute and has undertaken graduate studies in education and organizational development.