Jean McNulty

For the past 20 years, Jean McNulty has played a leading role in The Conference Board's councils, conferences and research, particularly in the Learning, Leadership Development and Talent Management areas. In addition, Jean's been a key resource for The Conference Board in developing our work on corporate brand management and employer branding. As the leader of our research working groups on talent management, employee engagement and strategic workforce planning, Jean led the organization into new areas that we have continued to build upon. She created our annual conference on Talent Management and has developed it and our conference on Leadership Development into world class events that are "must attends" for executives. Jean continues to lead our councils in Corporate Learning, Leadership Development and Talent Management, all of which are highly sought after learning communities for leading executives.
