

Rhea Duttagupta is a Director at PricewaterhouseCoopers. She is a lead practitioner in Talent Management and People Strategy

Rhea has 10 years of global experience in helping clients facilitate organisational transition during times of change e.g. organisation structure/redesign, change management, HR function design, Centres of Excellence, HR measurement and benchmarking, competency development, culture integration, leadership development and talent management

She has led and managed a large number of complex assignments globally for large multinational organisations in cross cultural contexts in the US, Middle East, East Asia, Japan, Europe, UK and India. Rhea is a frequent speaker/commentator on Talent Management in external conferences and internal networks.

Rhea has authored external articles on talent/HR management publications including the Economist, Wall Street Journal and The Conference Board