Geoff Crouse
Chief Operating Officer
Immucor

Geoff Crouse joined Immucor in August, 2009. He previously served as vice president of the life sciences business at Millipore Corporation, a NYSE-traded provider of technologies, tools and services for the global life science industry. In this role, he led the Life Science Strategic Business Unit, a global laboratory consumables and reagents business, and held responsibility for manufacturing, research and development, sales and marketing. During his tenure, Mr. Crouse improved manufacturing operations, led multiple acquisitions and integrations while increasing sales and profitability for the business unit. Prior to joining Millipore, he worked at Roche, a Swiss Exchange-traded leader in the pharmaceuticals and diagnostics industries, where he most recently led market development and government affairs for the diagnostics division based in Basel, Switzerland.
