Annabell Chartres

Associate Director for Sustainability and Climate Change
PricewaterhouseCoopers

Annabell is an associate director with PwC, based in Beijing. She is part of the Sustainability and Climate Change group in China, providing a range of sustainability and environmental related services to domestic and international clients.

Within the sustainability and climate change team, Annabell is responsible for assisting clients to achieve their sustainability, environmental and efficiency objectives through the provision of services including sustainability strategy, carbon footprint and life cycle assessment services, sustainability reporting and assurance, and energy efficiency solutions.

Annabell also specialises in providing in depth market analysis, expertise and understanding of green technologies and their application in China. She has extensive knowledge of the greentech industry in China, across a broad range of industry sectors, with specialisation in renewable energy technologies. She was seconded to the China Greentech Initiative (a collaboration of companies analysing the greentech market in China) and was also part of the final editing and writing team for The China Greentech Report 2009.

She sits on PwC's Environmental Sustainability Steering Group in China and is responsible for helping to drive the Firm's internal environmental strategy, to be an environmentally responsible business leader.

Prior to joining PwC, Annabell worked for National Australia Bank, JP Morgan Investment Management and Merrill Lynch in project management and account management roles.

Annabell holds a Bachelor of Commerce from the University of Melbourne and a Master of International Development from RMIT University, Melbourne.
