Actor
IBIS Consulting Group

Kiara Jackson a Midwesterner who has recently regenerated as a southerner. I'm a "Jackson" of all trades, so I frequently develop new short-term interests which has resulted in a lot of random abilities. I have always had a passion for performing, particularly acting and have been a professional actor off and on for close to a decade. Like most actors, my day job consists of DEI program management for an elite private university. DEI has been the cornerstone of my professional career since graduating with my Bachelors, and I have been an advocate for DEI in every role I've held from diversity marketing to diversity training.
