Jonathan Liu, MD, FACP

Principal, Health Strategy
Amazon

Dr. Jonathan Liu is a board-certified internal medicine physician and healthcare strategist dedicated to improving population health through innovative and inclusive approaches. As Health Strategy Principal for Amazon Global Benefits Health & Wellness, Dr. Liu leads population health, social health, and inclusive health. He drives improvements in the well-being of Amazon employees, their families, and communities through innovative upstream programs and primary care strategies.

With a diverse background in healthcare leadership, Dr. Liu previously served as Network Medical Director for Optum Pacific Northwest, supporting federally qualified health centers in implementing value-based care. His executive experience extends to California's Health and Human Services Agency and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services, where he held senior roles shaping healthcare policy, strategy, and delivery.

Dr. Liu is on the board of the Integrated Benefits Institute and a Fellow of the American College of Physicians. He obtained his BS from MIT, MD from the Alpert Medical School of Brown University, and trained at the University of Pennsylvania, where he served as Chief Resident for Quality and Patient Safety. He is currently pursuing his Executive MBA at UCLA.
