

Anna Liza Rodriguez

Chief Nursing Officer and Vice President of Nursing and Patient Services

Fox Chase Cancer Center

Anna Liza Rodriguez is a transformational nurse executive and healthcare leader with over 25 years of experience advancing oncology nursing, patient care, and healthcare system operations. As Chief Nursing Officer and Vice President of Nursing and Patient Services at Fox Chase Cancer Center, she leads strategic initiatives across inpatient and ambulatory care that improve operational efficiency, patient safety, and workforce engagement.

A national speaker, published scholar, and Becker's "CNO to Know," Anna Liza is recognized for her innovative workforce strategies. She recently led the implementation of a four-day workweek for nurse leaders, an initiative that enhanced leader engagement, retention, and operational performance. Her team's experience and insights on flexible workforce models and leadership sustainability have been featured in Nursing Economics and multiple national forums.

At The Conference Board, Anna Liza will share lessons learned from piloting a four-day workweek in a complex healthcare environment, including the impact on leadership resilience, team performance, and organizational culture.
