David Evetts

AVP, Corporate Impact, President
USAA and USAA Educational Foundation

David Evetts leads the advocacy and philanthropy of USAA that makes meaningful impacts to the military and local community focused on three main pillars: Meaningful Careers, Financial Security, and Well-being. Additionally, he serves as the leader of The USAA and USAA Educational Foundation, 501c3 nonprofits sponsored by USAA, that improve the lives for military members and their families.

Prior to his current assignment, David served in leadership roles as the CEO Chief of Staff, CEO Communications, Corporate Responsibility, External Affairs and Enterprise Innovation. David joined USAA after serving the U.S. Army as a Field Artillery officer stationed in numerous locations across the globe including a deployment to Baghdad, Iraq in 2006 – 2007.

David is a graduate of West Point and holds MBAs from Cornell University and Queens University (Canada) along with Executive Certificates in Corporate Social Responsibility from Johns-Hopkins University and Harvard. He serves as the Vice-Chair of The Conference Board's Philanthropy and Employee Engagement Council and is active mentor for transitioning service members and volunteers with several community organizations with his family of five.