Joe Molnar

Chief Technology Officer
Rakuten Americas

Joe Molnar leads Rakuten's engineering, data science, security and productivity organizations, where he is responsible for the technology vision and execution behind a platform that powers loyalty and commerce for millions of members and thousands of brands, merchants and partners worldwide.

Driving this is an acute focus on building intelligent systems that deliver at scale and adapt as the business grows into new markets, surfaces and partner integrations, while ensuring the platform is secure, data-driven and capable of powering the individualized experiences that drive member engagement and partner results.