Vice President for Budget Analysis
Peter G. Peterson Foundation

Gordon Gray is Vice President for Budget Analysis at the Peter G. Peterson Foundation.

Prior to joining Peterson, Gordon served as the founding Executive Director for the Pinpoint Policy Institute, a policy research nonprofit. Before launching Pinpoint, he served as the Vice President for Economic Policy at the American Action Forum, where his portfolio included the federal budget, taxes, the macroeconomic outlook, and general economic policy matters.

Gordon previously served as a senior policy advisor to Senator Rob Portman (R-Ohio) and was policy director during Senator Portman's 2010 campaign. Before joining the campaign, he was a professional staff member for the Senate Budget Committee, and previously served as deputy director of domestic and economic policy for Senator John McCain's 2008 presidential campaign, and spent several years with the American Enterprise Institute.

Gordon has testified as an expert witness before multiple committees in Congress on a range of domestic and economic policy areas, and has provided commentary and analysis appearing in print, TV, radio, and other media. Gordon is a graduate of Tufts University.
