

Joe Daly

Global Managing Partner
Gallup

Joe Daly is Gallup's global managing partner, head of global analytics and a member of the company's board of directors. Under Joe's leadership, Gallup has transformed from the legendary leader in U.S. public opinion polling into the world's largest, foremost authority on global public sentiment, headlined by the Gallup World Poll, which has systematically tracked more than 160 countries, representing 99% of the world's adult population, since 2005.

Through large-scale partnerships with the world's most influential corporations, foundations, governments and family offices, Joe architected Gallup's expansion into a global force — building vast international tracking systems that collectively serve as humanity's most powerful "listening machine."

As a member of Gallup's board, Joe also leads Gallup's in-house investment group, which invests in closely aligned ownership of companies that serve both Gallup shareholders and clients.

In addition to his work at Gallup, Joe serves as national chairman of the board for Lemonade Day, a nonprofit advancing youth entrepreneurship and financial literacy in 97 cities across the United States and Puerto Rico.

He holds an MBA in international business from Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business and a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from Pennsylvania State University.
