

Access to Experts

James Kim

James Kim is a research assistant for the Center for Financial Markets and Policy at Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business. The center fosters discussion on critical policy and regulatory issues related to global financial markets. The center works to host dialogues, conferences, and events involving industry, academia, and policymakers; provide a nonpartisan forum for informed discussion; sponsor relevant and impactful research on key global market issues; and engage students interested in finance.