Senior Economist, Labor Markets
The Conference Board

elizabeth.crofoot@conferenceboard.org

Elizabeth Crofoot is a Senior Economist in labor markets at The Conference Board, where she is part of the Help Wanted OnLine® program and leads the International Labor Comparisons (ILC) program. She has over 15 years of experience assessing international data sets and developing comparative measures of labor productivity, worker compensation, and unit labor costs. Her research focuses on international labor markets and online labor market platforms in the digital economy.

Prior to joining The Conference Board, Crofoot was a supervisory economist for the International Labor Comparisons program at the US Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). While at BLS, she managed production of ILC data and published research examining international manufacturing competitiveness in the Monthly Labor Review.

Crofoot holds an MA in economics from American University and a BA in political science and economics from the University of Washington.
