

Pamela Hinds

Associate Professor, Management Science and Engineering
Stanford University

Pamela Hinds is an associate professor in management science and engineering at Stanford University. She studies the dynamics of globally distributed work teams and writes about issues of culture, language, and the transfer of work practices in global collaborations.