

Steven C. Sheinberg

General Counsel and SVP, Privacy & Security
Anti-Defamation League

Steve Sheinberg is General Counsel and Senior Vice President for Privacy and Security of ADL and its supporting foundation. In these roles, Steve is responsible for protecting ADL's assets, reputation, people and data.

Steve writes about the intersection of emerging technology and employment law, arguing that modern risk management requires employment lawyers to have an extremely deep and sophisticated understanding of emerging technology and its uses.

Prior to becoming ADL's General Counsel in 2011, Steve was instrumental in developing several key ADL programs, including ADL's cyberhate policy program. He also practiced employment law at Outten & Golden, LLP and has held leadership roles in the Plaintiff's employment bar.

Steve holds a BA from Hofstra University, a PhD from Bowling Green University and a JD from Emory University. He is admitted in New York, Connecticut and various federal courts including the United States Supreme Court.
