

Mike Mister

Senior Fellow, Human Capital
The Conference Board

Mike Mister is a Senior Fellow in the Human Capital Practice of The Conference Board, an Honorary Professor in the School of Law at Queen Mary, University of London, UK and a partner in leading professional services consultancy PSFI Llp.

Mike is the co-author of the best-selling business book, How to Lead Smart People, published by Profile Books and also From Work Life to New Life – reinventing the reules of retirement for smart professionals. Mike currently works in supporting the development of leadership and change management capability in organizations full of “Smart People.” His key areas of expertise and interest are at the intersection of strategy, commercial success, and the organization’s people agenda. He has over 35 years’ experience of working in knowledge-rich organizations, and for most of that time has consulted around the world with partners and leadership teams. In his last major corporate role, Mike was Global Director for Executive Development at EY Global (formerly Ernst & Young Global).