Designing Organizations for Differentiation and Transformational Results

Join top organization design and transformation leaders in a highly interactive full-day workshop to review the practices and tools of leading organizations. Dig into detailed case studies of practical organization redesigns. Be exposed to innovative frameworks to design and lead business model transformations that help organizations achieve marketplace leadership. Apply the concepts and frameworks to your own organization’s transformation challenges.

Looking forward, the one certainty all organizations face is that the nature of customer interactions, solutions delivery, and value creation will require new approaches, tools and leadership capabilities. This workshop will provide hands-on interaction with innovative and proven tools to design and lead business model change and participants will take back new strategies for designing and implementing organizational change that enhances organization differentiation, resilience, and agility.

Featured Speakers Include:
Reed Deshler, Principal, AlignOrg Solutions
Ken Thompson, Principal, AlignOrg Solutions

Welcome and Introductions

8:40 – 9:20 am
Rise of the Transformers and the Triumph of Humanity
No, this isn’t the title of the next superhero blockbuster. Instead, we begin by exploring the rise of two important phenomena over the past several years: the growing ranks of Chief Transformation Officers, and the growing understanding of the need for human-centered change. What does each trend tell us about how Change and Transformation is prioritized and practiced at truly agile organizations? How have these movements impacted digital transformations?

Robert Hackl, Senior Vice President, Business Transformation & Analytics, Sprint
Biren Fondevkar, Chief Transformation Officer, NetApp

Moderator:
Dr. Charles Popper, Program Director, CIO Business Council; Leader, Digital Transformation Institute, The Conference Board

9:20 – 10:05 am
Dialogue: Driving Transformational Change in 2020 and Beyond
Fortune 500 leaders who have driven transformational initiatives in their organizations share what it will take to lead in an environment of ever-accelerating change. Learn the crucial shifts in communications, mindset and change capacity that will be necessary to nourish cultures that embrace change across the organization.

10:05 – 10:50 am
Bringing Change Strategy from the Boardroom to the Front Line
The larger the organization, the harder it can seem to bring an understanding of the competitive pressures that make change crucial from the boardroom to the front line. Yet those on the front line may be experiencing that new competitive environment in ways those at the top may not fully appreciate. Successful change brings those strategic and front-line understandings together into a compelling narrative for change. Learn how to build and communicate that narrative to create organization-wide change that sticks.

10:50 – 11:20 am
Break

Concurrent Tracks:
Culture and Mindset – Insights on using science, data and more to change cultures and mindsets and build resiliency
Strategies in Action – Case studies on initiatives to drive digital transformation, enhance productivity, build change capacity and more

Case Study: Enabling Change from the Ground Up at Bayer

The continued pace of change and innovation, combined with multi-national, multi-divisional organization, provides an opportune, yet challenging environment to drive consistency and enable change at scale. In this case study, learn how repositioning change management as change enablement shifted focus to simplicity and leveraging a network of change enablers as strategic change drivers. We will explore:

- Path to adding value and building capability
- The process of gaining alignment, support, and participation
- Creating or curating consistent tools for use by change practitioners and business leaders
- Key learnings, successes, and challenges along the way

Dr. Drew Kreienkamp, U.S. Organization Effectiveness & Development Lead, Bayer

12:45 – 1:45 pm

Concurrent Session

Case Study: The Secret Ingredient of Successful Disruptions - Opening Up To Fears

Dawn Food Products – a 100-year-old, family-owned, global maker and distributor of bakery ingredients and supplies – understands that digital disruption will be an essential element of success in the next 100 years. A new platform would allow sales reps to move away from administrative tasks and focus on building relationships and sharing their bakery expertise. But it also meant new roles and the fears that come with them. Learn how an effort to “get the fear out,” and to encourage speaking up about rather than self-censoring resistance, ultimately helped energize and engage team members around new ways of working.

Joshua Sukenic, Vice President, General Manager, Digital Programs, Dawn Foods

1:45 – 2:25 pm

Concurrent Session

A Change Target and a Change Enabler: Environments that Advance Employee, Consumer, and Community Health

More and more enterprises are viewing the advancement of healthy environments as a business imperative, one that enhances performance in a multitude of ways. In this discussion with leading health executives, explore:

- How healthy environments are transforming and improving performance for employees.
- How a holistic health strategy is a distinct advantage to the way companies transform engagement with consumers and the community.
- Human-centered transformations taking place to advance healthy environments.

Data-Driven Story Telling, and Its Power to Drive Change at All Levels

At the heart of “Data-Driven, Human-Centered Change” is the ability to connect data to human experience – to tell a story that resonates both logically and emotionally. Explore why data-driven storytelling is powerful whether you are seeking change in the C-Suite or on the front lines, and learn through examples of how to successfully blending data and story for maximum impact.

Avanti Paul, Senior Director, S&P Global

2:30 – 3:10 pm

Concurrent Session

Driving Self-Disruption and Continuous Transformation at Intuit

As the authors of Orchestrating Transformation note, Intuit’s success has long been based on embracing “ongoing digital transformation not as a one-time process but as a permanent feature of how the company operates.” With self-disruption using customer-driven innovation and Design for Delight methodologies built into the company’s DNA, transformation is continuous. How is that continuous transformation executed and experienced on the front lines?

Starting as a missile combat crew member for the US Air Force, then specializing in business transformations for global market leaders, Intuit Director of Program Management Tina Muller has long focused on the effective execution of complex change management strategies.

Driving Change versus Driving People

A Change initiative is ultimately about changing human behavior, and whatever framework is used, often the process is designed with an underlying assumption of compelling change through positive or negative incentives. It is an assumption that one must “drive people” to change. Yet, even when a change is framed as mandatory, this “driving people” approach all too frequently fails.

In this session, we will explore what it means to “Drive Change” rather than “Drive People” – to model change and clear obstacles for others to follow – with specific actionable examples.

April Mills, Business Architect and Principal Consultant, Intel; author, Everyone is a Change Agent

Digital and Data-Driven Transformations: Why Few Succeed, and Ways To Beat the Odds

Plotting digital change is exciting stuff – business leaders can almost smell the gains in efficiency and speed and the data-driven increase in customer satisfaction when they think about all the new tools at their disposal. However, evidence indicates that only a third of these transformations end up being successful. So what’s causing the gap? Why is building and sustaining a digital and data-driven mindset so challenging? Gain practical insights on driving data-driven decision making and transformation, from experiences at one of the world’s leading power companies.

Building a Billion-Dollar Transformation at Highmark Health
A few years ago, Highmark Health – the second largest integrated health care delivery and financing system in America – went on a journey to transform how their over 35,000 employees worked, while also transforming how those changes would take place. Through its thinkUP initiative, Highmark brought in-house and scaled across the enterprise the kind of change capability that had previously been decentralized and consultant-run. Learn how thinkUP branded and communicated its mission, how it selected projects, how it quantified its impact on the bottom line, and how it works toward bringing $1 billion in value creation to the organization.

Larry Kleinman, Chief Human Resources Officer, Highmark Health

11:30 am – 12:10 pm
Building Our Resilience and Influence as Change Leaders
We speak of change fatigue and building resilience among employees across the organization. In this session, we discuss building resilience and influence among the point people at the forward edge of every initiative – the Change professionals. We explore two interrelated topics:

• How to build and maintain resilience, often in environments where one is expected to drive change with ever-more-aggressive timelines and ever-shrinking resources;
• How to build influence when the unique perspective of the Change professional can provide insights into opportunities for improvement in the underlying program that is the subject of a change initiative.

Alana Silverman, Director, Change Management, Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center
