

Fading public confidence

Declining positive views of capitalism do not reflect the values underpinning free enterprise but a concern that the system's opportunities are not accessible to all Americans.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Rebuilding confidences means ensuring that more people have confidence to start and build a business. Entrepreneurship should be an accessible pathway for everyone—from early education and hands-on experience to the financing, networks, and support needed to build a sustainable business.